Essay Contests For High School Students 2014:

International Practices to Promote Budget Literacy Harika Masud, Helene Pfeil, Sanjay Agarwal, Alfredo Gonzalez

Briseno, 2017-08-09 Budget literacy is defined as the ability to read, decipher, and understand public budgets to enable and enhance meaningful citizen participation in the budget process. It is comprised of two main parts: i) a technical understanding of public budgets including familiarity with government spending, tax rates, and public debt; and ii) the ability to engage in the budget process, comprising of practical knowledge on day-to-day issues as well as an elementary understanding of the economic, social, and political implications of budget policies, the stakeholders involved, and when and how to provide inputs during the annual budget cycle. Given that no international standards or guidelines have been established for budget literacy education to date, this book seeks to address this gap by taking stock of illustrative initiatives promoting budget literacy for youth in selected countries. The underlying presumption is that when supply-side actors in the budget process governments simplify and disseminate budget information for demand-side actors, citizens will then be used by citizens to provide feedback on the budget. However, since citizens are often insufficiently informed about public budgets to constructively participate in budget processes, one way to empower them and to remedy the problem of budget illiteracy is to provide budget literacy education in schools to youth, helping them evolve into civic-minded adults with the essential knowledge needed for analyzing their government's fiscal policy objectives and measures, and the confidence and sense of social responsibility to participate in the oversight of public resources. This book elaborates on approaches, learning outcomes, pedagogical strategies, and assessment approaches for budget literacy education and presents lessons that are relevant for the development, improvement, or scaling up of budget literacy initiatives.

Engaging Teachers, Students, and Families in K-6 Writing Instruction Danielle L. DeFauw, 2020-06-03 This text draws on interviews, assignments, field notes, and observations from a flipped writing methodology course conducted with preservice elementary teachers in the US. In doing so, the text powerfully illustrates the benefits of using flipped methodologies in K-6 instruction to engage students, teachers, and families in authentic writing practices. Engaging Teachers, Students, and Families in K-6 Writing Instruction demonstrates the use of flipped writing methodologies to engage preservice teachers in literacy instruction, increase their confidence as writers, and bolster their understanding and application of pedagogical content knowledge. In turn, this underpins teachers' ability to teach writing as an authentic, purpose-driven, audience-focused process. In particular, chapters explore effective teaching strategies, including writing clinics, writing contests, and family literacy sessions, which encourage writing development within a community of students, teachers, families, and authors. This text will be an engaging and informative guide for educational researchers, teacher educators, and preservice and inservice teachers looking to develop effective flipped writing pedagogies to support educators, students, and families.

Analysis of 120 student's written work and how to improve their Writing Performance Gerry Mclellan,2018-09-19 Academic Paper from the year 2018 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature course English language English abstract Recent developments in EIKEN and TEAP testing in Japan try to ensure that students can write to a suitable standard and express their thoughts concisely whilst making use of correct academic conventions However as many teachers are aware a large percentage of their university students are incapable of writing even the most fundamental sentences despite having studied the language for six years Indeed large numbers of students wishing to attend universities in the UK and other overseas countries find it difficult to convey meaning accurately in English They face similar problems with content and structure This paper examines how three classes one of 35 students and two of 34 students at one university were assessed on their written ability and demonstrate that even with the most rudimentary instruction and feedback many were able to increase their writing performance significantly I write this paper before the onset of a more detailed active research project I hope to conduct and feel confident that the initial findings substantiate further research into this field Additionally I am collaborating with a colleague to develop assessment software for the educational sector In the following paragraphs I will discuss the methodology and reasoning behind the research project before discussing the findings I teach English at a number of institutes from junior high schools to universities and I have always wondered how I might be able to help or encourage my students to improve upon their writing skills Since I also grade written work for EIKEN pre first examinees and TEAP

examinees as well as deliver seminars on correct EAP conventions I noticed that a large number of students make similar and repetitive mistakes in their written work At the time of writing I am collaborating with a colleague to develop assessment software for the EFL market and I wanted to test the appropriateness of this software on a number of students receive their feedback and suggestions and make any necessary alterations to the planned software design before making an investment
