

1. The first step is to select the components for the robot's head. This includes the head shell, eyes, and antennae. The head shell should be made of a sturdy material like plastic or metal. The eyes can be made from small circles of paper or plastic. The antennae can be made from thin rods or wires.

2. The next step is to assemble the head. Attach the head shell to the base of the robot. Then, attach the eyes and antennae. Make sure they are securely fastened.

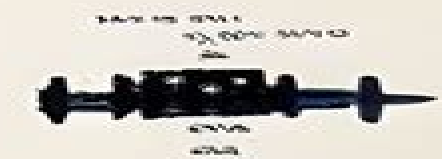

3. The third step is to build the robot's body. This involves creating the torso and arms. The torso can be made from a rectangular block of material. The arms can be made from thin rods or wires.

4. The fourth step is to build the robot's legs. This involves creating the leg joints and the leg shells. The leg joints can be made from small circles of paper or plastic. The leg shells can be made from thin rods or wires.

5. The fifth step is to assemble the legs. Attach the leg joints to the base of the robot. Then, attach the leg shells. Make sure they are securely fastened.

6. The sixth step is to test the robot. Make sure all the components are working properly. If there are any problems, adjust the components accordingly.

7. The seventh step is to display the robot. Show it to your friends and family. They will be impressed by your work.
