Performance and Performativity Mehmet Şiray,2009 Within the wide range of writings on performance studies theoreticians and practitioners have been using the concepts of performance and performativity as key terms for explaining different social philosophical and artistic phenomena The question what are performance and performativity is always already shaped according to what sort of performance is being carried out which performance is taken into consideration which contexts and power knowledge stratum operate in the formation of these concepts Performance and Performativity primarily aims to find a way of grasping the maze of different positions that have become incorporated within the general and often overlapping terms of performance studies and performative theory The book focuses on how the power of discourse to produce what it names is linked with the question of performance and performativity rather than providing a general intellectual background and context for the modern idea of performance and performativity Staging of Classical Drama Around 2000 Pavlina N. Šipová,Alena Sarkissian,2007 Classical drama on the modern stage as a cultural and political phenomenon is scholarly trailed since the 1950s and 60s and intensified in the last third of the twentieth century. The evidence is being extensively documented, pioneered by Walton 1987 and McDonald 1992 and subsequently developed by collaborative research projects which include published databases. It is clear from the work of these projects that performance of classical drama is a major feature in all types of theatre, avant garde and experimental, student, international and fringe, epic and classical, commercial, popular and canonical. This means that it is closely intertwined with the politics of locale, environment and geography as well as of language, translation and culture. Each of the essays has a specialised contribution to make. However, the total impact of the whole section will be even greater than the sum of the parts because the authors not only intersect in their discussions of common concerns in modern performance of ancient drama but also provide case studies that will add to the knowledge base and critical acumen of everyone working in the field.

Current Contents. Arts & Humanities Institute for Scientific Information, 2001. Designing Smart Objects in Everyday Life Marco C. Rozendaal, Betti Marenko, William Odom, 2021-07-15. The dramatic acceleration of digital technologies and their integration into physical products is transforming everyday objects. Our domestic appliances, furniture, clothing are growing in intelligence. Smart objects are increasingly capable of interacting with humans in a purposeful manner with intentionality. This collection of essays, descriptions of empirical work and design case studies, brings together perspectives from interaction design, the humanities, science and technology studies, and engineering to map, explore and interrogate ways in which our relationships with everyday smart objects might expand and be re-imagined. By offering a critical assessment on the growing place of smart technology in everyday environments, this book outlines a transdisciplinary research agenda for the future of smartness to help define, envision and inspire future collaborative design practices. These essays propose an understanding and design of smart objects that embrace their hybrid nature as shifting and blending tools, agents, machines or even creatures. Authors argue that smart objects have the potential to enter into multiple kinds of relationships with humans and form complex human/nonhuman ecologies that are both meaningful and empowering in the context of everyday life. This book also shines a light on the hidden infrastructures behind the functioning of smart objects, with stirring debates tackling questions of technology, human values and economic and ecological impact. Whether you are a design scholar, design practitioner or design activist, this book will inspire through offering theoretical insights, design concepts and practical ways on how to engage in this research agenda for future smartness.
