Women Writers,
1800–2000

A dark, atmospheric photograph showing an aerial view of a coastal area. A large, winding river or coastal inlet flows from the center-left towards the bottom-right. The water is a deep orange-brown color. Along the riverbank, there is a small, scattered settlement of houses. The surrounding land is a mix of dark, shadowed areas and lighter, sandy or rocky terrain. The overall mood is mysterious and somewhat desolate.

Austerity and Irish Women's Writing and Culture, 1980-2020 Deirdre Flynn, Ciara L.

Murphy, 2022-07-18. Austerity and Irish Women's Writing and Culture 1980-2020 focuses on the under-represented relationship between austerity and Irish women's writing across the last four decades. Taking a wide focus across cultural mediums, this collection of essays from leading scholars in Irish studies considers how economic policies impacted on and are represented in Irish women's writing during critical junctures in recent Irish history. Through an investigation of cultural production north and south of the border, this collection analyses women's writing using a multimedium approach through four distinct lenses: austerity, feminism, and conflict; arts and austerity; race and austerity; and spaces of austerity. This collection asks two questions: what sort of cultural output does austerity produce? And if the effects of austerity are gendered, then what are the gender specific responses to financial insecurity, both national and domestic? By investigating how austerity is treated in women's writing and culture from 1980 to 2020, this collection provides a much-needed analysis of the gendered experience of economic crisis and specifically of Ireland's consistent relationship with cycles of boom and bust. Thirteen chapters, which focus on fiction, drama, poetry, women's life writing, and women's cultural contributions, examine these questions. This volume takes the reader on a journey across decades and forms as a means of interrogating the growth of the economic divide between the rich and the poor since the 1980s through the voices of Irish women.

Irish Novelists and the Victorian Age James H. Murphy, 2011-01-13. This is the first comprehensive study of the neglected Irish writers of the Victorian age whose work was highly popular with the British reading audience and therefore disparaged and largely forgotten from the era of W.B. Yeats and the Irish Literary Revival with its culturally nationalist agenda onwards. It is based on a reading of around 370 novels by 150 authors, including William Carleton, the peasant novelist who wielded much influence, and Charles Lever, whose serious work was destroyed by the slur of 'rollicking' as well as Joseph Sheridan Le Fanu, George Moore, Emily Lawless, Somerville, and Ross, Bram Stoker, and three of the leading authors from the new woman movement: Sarah Grand, Iota, and George Egerton. James H. Murphy examines their writing in a variety of contexts: the political, economic, and cultural developments of the time, the vicissitudes of the reading audience, the realities of a publishing industry that was for the most part London-based, the often difficult circumstances of the lives of the novelists, and the ever-changing genre of the novel itself to which Irish authors often made a contribution. Politics, history, religion, gender, and particularly land, over which nineteenth-century Ireland was deeply divided, featured as key themes for fiction. Finally, the book engages with the critical debate of recent times concerning the supposed failure of realism in the nineteenth century Irish novel looking for deeper causes than have hitherto been offered and discovering occasions on which realism turned out to be possible

New Books on Women and Feminism, 2005 Library & Information Science Abstracts, 2006 Opening the Field

Patricia Boyle Haberstroh, Christine St. Peter, 2007 One of the defining moments in late twentieth century Irish literature was the publication of The Field Day Anthology of Irish Writing 1991 which immediately created a controversy This extensive collection covering more than a thousand years was marked by the virtual absence of female writers To fill this gap Cork University Press published The Field Day Anthology of Irish Writing Irish Women's Writing and Traditions in 2002 In response to both of these texts Opening the Field offers a collection of essays in which ten prominent critics each examine a text by an Irish woman applying a specific feminist perspective The strategy behind the book is to demonstrate the different varieties of feminist criticism and the numerous ways in which books by Irish women can be read taking into account both the text under consideration and the contexts in which it was written and can might be read This collection will be valuable for scholars in both Irish Studies and Women s Studies it will also serve as a useful classroom text as its several perspectives combine with close readings of many works thus serving well as supplementary reading for classes in Irish literature
