special the first one was just a drawing I did on my phone But it felt so therapeutic to draw what I felt that I kept drawing something about each day to help me deal with it It first it was on whatever I had around me to draw it on my phone a napkin a post it note But over time as we dealt with it things became more clear and so did my comic journal My wife is now in recovery and cancer free But drawing about what we went through each day I think really helped us get through it It started a dialog that I don t think would have been there otherwise The comics aren t all about going through cancer We still had our day to day lives and sometimes it was just about that remembering something about each day It s really easy just to say Nothing happened today So I wanted to make sure I found something to look back on After a near death experience like that we knew that we wanted to do something different with our lives which will happen So we started taking chances We wanted to meet people in the artist community in our city I was posting these comics every day on a website I created called American Bandito So I started a podcast on the website I posted an ad on Facebook that basically asked artists within a 10 mile radius of where I lived if they wanted to be on it I started meeting artists through that ad People I never knew before And things started happening from there One of the people that I talked to for instance also did pop up events And she told me I should try it So I did I printed my comics as little books I made myself It was almost a year later we were selling things at an art event and that became this collection of comics from my journal over that period of a year Terminally Illin' Kaylin Andres, Jon Solo, 2015 Terminally Illin' is a collection of comics written during a 23 year old girl s battle with a rare bone cancer While enduring harsh chemo treatments Kaylin teamed up with her friend Jon and they worked on the stories The laughter helped to ease the pain They want to share this laughter and imagination with others that might find it helpful or entertaining After all laughter is the best medicine Janet & Me Stan Mack, 2004-10 Featuring his trademark documentary cartooning style acclaimed journalist artist Stan Mack chronicles a poignant unflinching and intensely personal story of love and loss and the remarkable relationship at the heart of it all Illustrations throughout Alisa Grodsky's Cancer Crackup Alisa Grodsky, 2017-04-20 A comical collection of uplifting whimsical and humorous thoughts about a very ominous and serious disease Living with and through any cancer can be one of the most challenging chapters of someones life This book of comic relief is my attempt to lighten the load under what can feel like insurmountable odds These pages serve as a daily reminder that laughter is a necessary medicine All proceeds obtained from the sale of this book will be donated directly to cancer research It is my hope that Cancer Crackup brings moments of laughter and the strength to carry on Vixen: NYC Volume Four Jasmine Walls, 2024-03-05 Before starting college Mari Jiwe s relatives gift her an ancestral totem once fabled to give its wearer the powers of the animal kingdom Mari just chalks its magical powers up to superstition After arriving in New York City though she definitely notices something strange about her new home Especially the animals While Mari battles staying awake in class and feral subway rats dark plans emerge from the corners of the vast metropolis Girls who look just like her start going missing and Mari can t shake the feeling that she s next As for the totem Turns out that the magical powers are actually a thing and Mari is next up to wield them My Head, My Heart, My Hoooha E. M.
