 Cole,1985-08-01 Potos a mining center in what is now Bolivia was the most productive source of silver in the Spanish American Empire between the mid 1500 s and the late seventeenth century Much of this success was attributable at least initially to the mita a system of draft Indian labor instituted by Viceroy Francisco do Toledo in 1573 for the working of the silver mines and refineries Bitter debate swirled around the mita during most of its 250 year history It was assailed by its enemies as a form of servitude worse than slavery and accused of depopulating the provinces subject to it yet it was supported by many however reluctantly who believed that the Spanish Empire depended on Potos silver for its survival The author traces the evolution of the mita from its inception to the end of the Hapsburg epoch in 1700 The primary focus is on the metamorphosis of the mita under the pressures of changing production realities at Potos and demographic developments in the provinces from which the Indians were drafted The author describes the role of native headmen kurakas in the system the means used by Indians to evade service and the efforts of the mining guild to tailor the mita to its needs The secondary focus is on the Hapsburg government s administration of the mita especially those factors that prevented the Crown or its viceroys from being fully effective
